Each training session will begin with a general gathering of all participants followed by participants being divided into species-specific groups. Youth will choose any one of the species sessions to attend for more detailed, project-related information. All sessions will last for a period of ninety minutes. NOTE: Any collegiate youth, or youth not living in the Licking County area can contact the Licking County Extension Office to find Q.A. programs that are located closer to them. All qualified QA training programs must take place prior to June 1st.

Notification of Ineligibility in Licking County...

Any Licking County 4-H youth exhibitor who has not met the Junior Fair Livestock Quality Assurance training requirement at the conclusion of the last scheduled meeting (May 13, 2023) will be notified by email that they are ineligible to exhibit livestock (in the areas requiring QA training) during the 2023 Hartford Independent Fair. FFA Advisors will be contacted and asked to share similar details with their intended exhibitors. At that point, they will have until June 1, 2023 to complete a training in another county or complete YQCA online training (at their cost) in order to meet the training requirement. On June 2, 2023 the Senior Fair Board will receive a listing of those Licking County 4-H youth not meeting requirements. These individuals will be denied entry of livestock projects which require quality assurance training.

Delaware & Knox County 4-H / FFA Member Requirements...

Those youth who attend the Hartford Independent Fair and are enrolled members in the Delaware or Knox County 4-H / FFA program will be required to attend only one Quality Assurance program. Upon their attendance of a program in their home county, their Extension Office will contact the Hartford Fair and Licking County Extension office to report attendance. Any youth not completing a quality assurance program in either their home county or within Licking County by June 1, 2023 would then be found ineligible to exhibit in the 2023 Hartford Junior Fair livestock program.
